screen. It never has served as the locale of a better picture, and other Monte Carlo pictures have been as common as flies around a sugar bowl.

It is unfair to compare a motion picture with a stage play, but "The Cardboard Lover" certainly equals in comedy to the successful farce, in which Jeanne Eagels starred on Broadway, from which the screen play takes its name. Miss Davies, the director and the scenarist have done a rarely pleasing job.

With Miss Davies in the lead it is usually easy to forget the rest of the cast, but not in this picture. The rest of the cast, namely, Nils Asther, Jette Goudal, who displays an unexpected sense of comedy; Tonen Holtz and Andre de Segurula are more than excellent.

"The Cardboard Lover" is a treat for those whose digestion can stand two hours of steady laughter with a bit of pathos now and again to season the comedy.

It will be shown at the Torrance Theatre for two nights, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 7-8.

Torrance Trips Japs; Will Play Here on Sunday

Locals Beat L.-A. Nippons 16-14; San Clemente at C.-C. M. O. Park Next

Resuming their march of victory, the Torrance nine Sunday smothered the fast Los Angeles Nippons at the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil park by a close 16-14 score before a crowd estimated at 300 fans.

Taking the lead from the start, Ed Tansey's boys never relinquished their claim of victory but once. Loose playing and heavy hitting, with the sons of Japan showing some of the fastest base running ever seen on the oil diamonds, was plentiful.

Flashy fielding on the part of Torrance continually pulled McGree out of tight spots. Two double plays in the second and fifth and a triple play in the eighth featured the struggle.

Five runs in the initial frame gave the local boys a safe lead until the third, when the Nippons fell on McGree for six hits and as many runs, but in their turn at bat Tansey's hirelings proceeded to make a picnic by hitting five safeties to chalk up eight more runs.

and piffing a sack. Next Sunday Torrance plays here, the San Clemente which the locals defeated for the first time in history on their dedication game one month ago.

Have Some Vegetables

CHILDREN learn to dislike all "so good for you" Spinach has had this to fight for years. Perhaps it would be better to serve these good vegetables with no remarks as to their fine mineral content, tonic properties and vitamin wealth and just try to make them so appealing to the appetite that no one wants to refuse them. One popular early vegetable is asparagus and there is little probability of its being spoiled in the cooking. Simply steamed until tender, then served with butter it is delicious, or cut into inch lengths and cooked in very little water, cream added and a bit of butter. Served on toast with a cream sauce slightly thickened is another most appetizing method of serving it. The following is a bit different:

Asparagus Shortcake.—Make a rich biscuit mixture and bake in two layers, one on top of the other, with the lower layer spread generously with butter. Wash and cut a bunch of asparagus into inch lengths and steam until tender. Season generously with butter, salt and pepper and add a pint of medium white sauce with two finely chopped hard-cooked eggs added. Fill and top the shortcake with this mixture and surround with parsley.

Savory Buttered Beets.—Wash a dozen young beets, cover with boiling water and cook for one hour or till tender. Slip off the skins in cold water and cut into thin slices. Heat three tablespoonsful of butter in a frying pan, add the beets, and sugar, prepared mustard and two tablespoonsful of vinegar. Serve very hot.

Parsnips are one of our most enjoyed vegetables. Wash and then cut them into small even-sized, finger-shaped pieces, put them on to cook with only the water which clings to them from washing. Add plenty of butter and seasoning and stir and cook until tender. Keep well covered while cooking. (© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)
